

Project Green Build

For Immediate Release
May 21, 2007

Local non-profit leader named to Northwest EcoBuilding Guild Board of Directors.

La Center, WA – The founder and board president of Project Green Build, Brandon Tauscher, was named to the Northwest EcoBuilding Guild Board of Directors to serve on the grants committee and publications committee for designing the Green Pages, a regional sustainable building directory. Tauscher will serve a 1-year term appointment and is eligible for a three-year extension next year.

The Northwest EcoBuilding Guild is a membership association of green builders, designers, tradespeople, manufacturers, suppliers and others interested in ecologically sustainable building. Tauscher's experience was in journalism and education before starting a local non-profit to support green building after building his family's own green home in La Center.

“Brandon's experience will be very valuable in what is becoming and exciting time in sustainable building,” said Northwest EcoBuilding Guild President Bruce Millard, a Sandpoint, Idaho, architect. “We are fortunate to have his excitement and skill set on our grants and publications committee.”

Local green building is increasing in Clark County as a trend towards sustainability is making its way through the public and private sector.

For more information about the Northwest EcoBuilding Guild, visit, www.ecobuilding.org.

For information on Project Green Build, www.projectgreenbuild.org.

###

For more information contact Project Green Build, 360-263-2719, or by e-mail at info@projectgreenbuild.org.